Art. 265³⁰²

VI. Consent of the child and the child protection authority

¹ If the child is capable of judgement, its consent is required for the adoption.

² Where the child has a legal guardian or a legal representative, adoption requires the consent of the child protection authority even if the child is capable of judgement.

Art. 265a³⁰³

VII. Parents' consent³⁰⁴
1. Form

¹ Adoption requires the consent of the child's father and mother.

² Such consent must be given by oral or written declaration to the child protection authority of the parents' or child's domicile or temporary residence and must be recorded.

³ Such consent is valid even if the persons wishing to adopt are not named or not yet determined.³⁰⁵

Art. 265b³⁰⁶

2. Time of consent

¹ Consent to adoption may not be given until at least six weeks after the birth of the child.

² It may be revoked within six weeks of having been accepted.

³ Where consent, having been revoked, is given again, it is then final.

Art. 265c³⁰⁷

3. Dispensing with consent
a. Requirements

The consent of a parent may be dispensed with if the identity of that parent is unknown, or if he or she has been of unknown whereabouts for some length of time, or permanently lacks capacity of judgement.

Art. 265d³⁰⁸

b. Decision

¹ Where the child is entrusted to persons wishing to adopt with a view to subsequent adoption and the consent of one parent is not forthcoming, the child protection authority at the child's domicile shall, at the request of the legal guardian or a legal representative, an adoption agency or the persons wishing to adopt, decide whether such consent can be dispensed with, as a rule before the child is placed in care.³⁰⁹

² In all other cases, the decision is made at the time of the adoption.
